IT'S YOUR BUSINESS

By
Siobhan Silbert

CALLING all businesses and entrepreneurs in the borough – nominations are now open for the Mayor of Hackney's Business Awards 2010.

The annual awards, now in their fifth year, celebrate and champion the diversity and excellence of small and medium-sized businesses in the borough. This is reflected this year in the creation of brand new categories including best leisure or entertainment business, and best business for disabled people.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "A lot has changed in the past five years and I realise that businesses have faced very difficult times.

However, what remains constant is the place small and medium sized businesses occupy at the heart of Hackney's local economy. That is why I am committed to supporting and showcasing the best of the borough's entrepreneurial spirit through these awards."

Mayor Pipe added: "Last year, our judges commented on the extremely high calibre of all the short listed entries and I am sure that this year Hackney's businesses will continue to impress."

The judging panel is made up of seasoned business professionals who all have a connection to Hackney; Sinclair Beecham MBE, co-founder of Pret a Manger and owner of the Hoxton Hotel, Yvonne Thompson CBE, founder of Choice FM, Enzo Testa, Executive Managing Director of Archant London and Ian King, Deputy Business Editor of the Times.

Past winners have included Dalston's Café Oto, design consultancy Seren, based in Shoreditch, and Skinners' Company's School for Girls.

Businesses and individuals must submit entries by 5pm on Friday, 9 July. All finalists will be invited to a reception on 14 September.

Message from the Mayor

We must challenge crime together

ON 22 May, a young man enjoying the sun in London Fields was shot and seriously injured. Like other tragic shootings, this had a profound impact on the wider public, particularly their sense of safety.

Sadly, reports of gang violence in London have become all too common, so that it takes an innocent bystander to be affected to take the story onto the pages of the national newspapers.

Hackney is home to 22,000 young people, the vast majority of whom, whatever their background, have no involvement with gangs or violence. One of the best things we can do to keep young people away from a life of crime is to give them an alternative – the ability to fulfil their aspirations. That is why over the past eight years we have concentrated on creating good schools that give young people a better start in life. With more Hackney pupils than the national average now achieving good exam results, young people today have never been so well-prepared to go into work or higher education.

But even those with the brightest future ahead of them have been harmed simply by hanging around with those involved in gang violence. There are more youth activities than at any time in the last decade, and the Council works to identify those at risk of getting drawn into gang violence and help them find alternatives. Hackney Police are constantly disrupting gang, gun and drug activity and there have been many arrests. Yet this will never be enough on its own.

We also need local people to take a stand. This is not only about coming forward to the police with information. It is about challenging behaviour before it is too late. It is about a community questioning the acceptability of a 12-year-old roaming the streets late at night. It has to be about parents and carers coming forward and asking for help and support if they can't cope. It is only by all sections of the community facing up to their responsibilities while children are still young, that we will see an end to these crimes and tragedies.

The 'think about fostering' event offered people a chance to meet experienced foster carers and register their interest in taking on a child

Offering a home

By Gracia Douglas

AN open evening to mark national Foster Care Fortnight saw more than 30 people turn out to find out about giving a home to a child or young person in the borough.

Organised by the Council's Adoption and Fostering Unit, the 'think about fostering' event gave people the opportunity to talk with experienced foster carers and staff, who were on hand to highlight the urgent need to find new foster carers in Hackney. Visitors listened to presentations and heard all about what fostering entails and why more carers are needed. They were also able to pick up leaflets and information in a relaxed atmosphere, that resulted in 20 people registering their interest to become a carer.

“If people feel they have the skills, qualities and space to become a foster care, please get in touch”

Sheila Poleon has been a foster carer for over six years and went along to help out. She said: “You can make a difference in the lives of vulnerable children. Helping them to progress and go on to enjoy their childhood is one of the many rewards.”

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: “I'm always pleased to hear about the many people who make the time to visit these events.

“If people feel they have the skills, qualities and space to become a foster care, and play a vital part in the lives of children who come into local authority care, please get in touch and find out more.”

Anyone who wishes to learn more about fostering can attend regular information evenings at the Adoption and Fostering Resource Centre in Homerton High Street, E9.

HACKNEY played host to the first ever British movie to be shot in three dimensions when StreetDance 3D – now on release at UK cinemas – was filmed at the Hackney Empire and Shoreditch Town Hall last year.

StreetDance 3D, produced by Vertigo Films and directed by Max and Dania, stars some of the UK's most talented streetdancers. Britain's Got Talent stars, Diversity, Flawless and George Sampson all appear in the film, which follows a street dance crew as they are forced to collaborate with a ballet academy in return for use of their rehearsal space.

The idea behind StreetDance came from James Richardson, co-founder of Vertigo Films, who wanted to highlight the talent of Britain's young dancers. He said: "I'd always loved the great American dance films of the 1980s – Dirty Dancing, Footloose – and thought it would be great to do a dance film with the same aspirational feel, but in a British setting.

"I started looking into the UK street dance scene, and soon realised that not only did we have some of the best dancers and choreographers, it was also visually incredibly rich."

Ballet academy scenes were filmed over two weeks at Shoreditch Town Hall, and the crew used the Hackney Empire for one day, staging a performance of Swan Lake in the theatre.

Location Manager, Joel Holmes, said: "Our day at the Hackney Empire was one of the most enjoyable of the shoot. The team made us feel very welcome, and worked around our challenging schedule. Overall, our weeks spent in Hackney were great."

Dance Nations Dalston

Get dancing in Dalston

RESIDENTS and visitors are encouraged to put on their dancing shoes and join in a weekend of hot-stepping action as part of this year's CREATE10 festival.

Dance Nations Dalston in Gillett Square on 3 and 4 July brings a jam-packed weekend of live music, dance workshops and performances led by the Barbican.

It is one of the borough's highlights in this year's festival, which celebrates arts and culture in the five host boroughs for the 2012 Games.

From 8 to 11 July, Hackney artist Robin Turner will take to the borough's roads in his specially commissioned roving vehicle to explore the changing urban landscape.

By day, people will be able to take part in nature activities, while every evening, the van will be transformed into London's smallest arts space presenting acoustic gigs, DJ sets, readings and more.

Other CREATE highlights include Hackney's Here exhibition at SPACE Courtyard from 18 June to 2 July, Shoreditch Festival from 16 to 18 July, and the Apple Cart Festival in Shoreditch Park on 25 July.

OLYMPIAN Tessa Sanderson is set to open a day of stalls and live entertainment to promote health in the borough.

The Your Health in Your Hands event on 19 June will offer free health checks for diabetes, heart disease and obesity; free dental screening; diet and nutrition advice; cooking demonstrations and information on local NHS services.

Other entertainment includes choirs, tango demonstrations and lessons, the Albion Kids Show, and the Purple Bus for young people.

In addition, guest passes to GLL leisure centres and JD Sports vouchers will be up for grabs.

The event is organised by NHS City and Hackney in association with the Council as part of this summer's Parks for Life campaign. (For more info see pgs 8&9)

It takes place from 11am-4pm, at St John at Hackney Church, Lower Clapton Road, E5. For info, call: 020 7683 4644.

Blitz survivors recall their memories of the Second World War

Matilda Kearney answers questions from pupils (above); Jack Whitehead gives a presentation on bomb sites near Betty Layward and William Patten schools

By Marcel Reinard

THERE were so many incidents Rene Broider, 88, could have chosen as an example of her experience of the Blitz.

"It wasn't a time I like to remember," she said, recalling how a bomb narrowly missed her Amhurst Road air raid shelter, adding: "It was horrible, but people should realise it's important not to glamourise wars."

Rene was among a group of older residents who recalled childhood memories to mark the 70th anniversary of the intense Luftwaffe bombing of London during the Second World War from September 1940 to May 1941.

The Hackney Town Hall event on 24 May was part of the 'Putting on the Blitz' project organised by The Learning Trust, Council, and local history magazine, TimeLine. It also featured pupils from City and Mossbourne academies; and Hackney Free and Parochial; Betty Layward; Rushmore; and William Patten schools, who read out short memoirs from attendees who survived the Blitz in Hackney, one of the worst hit areas. Stoke

“A lot of people may not have been here if the people of Hackney hadn't pulled together”

Newington-born Peter William, 69, said one of his vivid memories was the scream of the air raid siren. He played a tape made by his father describing his experience as an air raid warden. He said: "No matter where your family came from, a lot of people may not have been here if the people of Hackney and the country as a whole hadn't pulled together." Among the tragic events, there were lighter reminiscences: using gravy browning on legs to stand in for tights; and mashed parsnips with banana essence as a substitute for the real thing.

"We could barely tell the difference at the time, it was delicious," one person recalled.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Lassie come home

RESIDENTS who attend one of 30 Hackney Homes road shows this summer will be able to speak to specialists from Dogs Trust who will microchip their pets for free.

Elvira Meucci-Lyons, Head of Campaigns at Dogs Trust, said: "Microchipping is the most effective way to permanently identify your dog. Last year it helped to reunite almost 35,000 dogs with their owners. We look forward to seeing many Hackney Homes tenants, leaseholders and their dogs at the roadshows."

Specialist advice on responsible dog ownership, dog training tips, low cost vaccination, neutering, flea and worm treatment from Dogs Trust will also be available.

There is a £5 microchipping charge for residents who are not Hackney Homes tenants or leaseholders.

For info and roadshow dates call: 020 8356 1911; visit: www.hackneyhomes.org.uk; or for microchipping info visit: www.dogstrust.co.uk

Return of the mobile vet

THE Blue Cross mobile veterinary clinic has returned to Hackney Town Hall's car park. After the completion of road surfacing works, the clinic can again provide vet services to pet owners who can't afford private fees.

Basic care, vaccinations, microchipping and advice are provided and pets needing further treatment are referred to the charity's animal hospital in Victoria.

Although free, the charity does ask for a donation towards the cost of their services and there is a subsidised charge for services such as vaccinations. Geneen Lee-Opher (pictured) brought her cat Glow to the clinic. She said: "I've been here once before and the vaccination is much cheaper than going to a private vet."

The clinic is held in the car park of the Town Hall, Mare Street, every Wednesday between 10am-12noon, and 1.30-3.30pm. Service is on a first come, first served basis, and owners must bring proof of benefit or pension plus ID on each visit.

Plans for East Marsh wind turbine continue

PLANS for a wind turbine on East Marsh to generate green energy are continuing despite the Olympic Delivery Authority pulling out of a similar scheme on Eton Manor.

The ODA announced on 3 June that it would not be going ahead with the turbine in neighbouring Waltham Forest, as its preferred supplier felt unable to comply with new safety regulations, to protect maintenance workers, in time for the 2012 Games.

During a recent public consultation, Hackney residents overwhelmingly supported the idea of a turbine on East Marsh to generate local renewable electricity as part of the legacy of Games.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "The decision not to have a turbine on Eton Manor does not affect the viability of the East Marsh proposal, although there will be a reduction in the potential amount of power available overall."

Any turbine considered for East Marsh would comply with all relevant safety regulations. It could generate enough green electricity to power two thirds of Hackney's street lights. Discussions are continuing and if a good deal can be secured, the chosen turbine operator will have to submit a planning application, giving residents a further chance to comment.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, cuts the ribbon at the opening of the new Volunteer Centre Hackney

Giving is receiving

By Ruth Garland

THERE were celebrations as a new hub for Hackney volunteers opened its doors this month.

The Volunteer Centre Hackney (VCH) – formerly known as Hackney Voluntary Action – has offered support to individuals and organisations in the borough for 13 years.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, officially opened its new premises in Tyssen Street, E8, on 1 June.

Rose Nevers

A mother-of-four, Rose, 47, had plenty of experience as a volunteer driver for Hackney Community Transport. Two years ago, she trained as a Personal Best volunteer and was lucky enough to shake the Queen's hand when she visited the Olympic Park last November to plant the first of 300 white willow trees. She said: "I'd love to be at 2012. It's right on my doorstep. I've got to be there; be a part of it. Personal Best is all about being the best you can be."

Nearly a quarter of adults living in Hackney give up their time, unpaid, to help others at least once a month, and according to Volunteering England, formal volunteers contributed an estimated £22.7billion to the UK economy in 2007/8.

In Hackney, volunteers work alongside the police, youth workers, teachers, and nurses, and are having a measurable impact on the quality of public services.

VCH is set to launch several new volunteering schemes this year, including the Pathways project, which aims to start 100 people on a journey to better employability.

Hackney school leaver Innies Fryer joined Immediate Theatre as a volunteer, helping the training manager. She said: "I wasn't in education, employment or training. I was a bit lost, but now I've had experience with Immediate Theatre and have gone on to study at the Central School of Speech and Drama."

Volunteers work alongside paid staff in hospitals, schools and community settings. Hackney's Reading and Numeracy Recovery programmes depend on tuition by specialist teachers, but the inspiration for those most in need are volunteers who mentor Hackney schoolchildren.

Looking ahead, 70,000 volunteers are needed to help staff the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. Their contribution will be invaluable, but at the heart of the 2012 volunteering programme Personal Best, is the idea that the training and experience gained will build skills and confidence leading to paid employment and greater fulfilment.

Alicia Weston & Asligul Kokden

The Hackney Schools Mentoring Programme (HSMP) has matched more than 4,000 Year 10 pupils with local and City business volunteers since 1996. Alicia Weston, Associate Director at banking firm Macquarie Group, volunteered to mentor Asligul Kokden, then 14, in 2001. Asligul, 23, now works for Barclays Bank and they are still in touch. Alicia said: "I still have the original letter that I received from Asligul spelling out her aspirations and dream to work her way up to bank manager." Asligul recalls: "I remember thinking 'here is someone with real experience and skills' and wondering if I could be like her."

Daniel Morrison

Daniel turned a vice into a virtue when a youth charity gave him the opportunity to 'give back'. He said: "I started off on the wrong foot being done for stealing a bicycle. I thought no-one would give me a chance. Having a criminal record is a barrier, but the Volunteer Centre Hackney not only found me a placement, they took me to the interview, enrolled me on a bike maintenance course and ensured I was OK. Now I am volunteering with trained bike mechanics with charity Skyway."

Mary Cannon

Long-time Hackney resident, Mary Cannon, is Chair of the Community Empowerment Network (CEN) for Hackney, and on the Team Hackney Board. She said: "I volunteered with Age Concern Hackney, helping to manage the organisation, and then worked voluntarily with other people to support the work of the City and Hackney Health and Social Care Forum."

"My life experience informs my membership of the CEN and Team Hackney. From going to school in Hackney, being a governor, and having children at local schools; to being a carer for my mum, and running youth clubs, parent and toddler groups, and community organisations. This together with my contacts across the borough, and my involvement with the Hackney Marsh Partnership in Kingsmead, means I can join partners in working on strategies to support Hackney people to fulfil our potential."

Gamo Arnaud Leudjou

While a business studies student at college, Gamo worked at Volunteer Centre Hackney's resource centre, advising members of the public. He said: "I always wanted to volunteer because I thought it was a good way to give something back to the community and at the same time gain experience in a sector I am passionate about. "I was awarded the Millennium volunteer award for dedicating 100 hours of my time to volunteering – an award I hold very dear to my heart."

A day in the park

Thousands turned out for the first of the Council's Parks for Life events – set to run all summer

Sisters Lillian, seven, and Deleon, five, clambered onto a log (left). Siblings Saki, seven, and Oleanna, six, took a flying leap from a pirate ship (right). Their mum said: "I thought it would be commercial, with people trying to sell things. But it's a good balance. The kids love the pirate ship, and the logs to play on."

Tom Hazelton, from Lea Valley Football Club, coaches the teams. He said: "Our club works with children from estates and helps to get them off the streets and into sport. We're a successful local club, organising teams from under-10s up to adults."

By
Miranda Yates

AS Hackney basked in temperatures hotter than parts of the Med, crowds poured into London Fields to enjoy a mini-festival.

The event on 22 May was the first of many set to take place in Hackney's award-winning green spaces this summer, as part of the Council's Parks for Life programme.

Scattered among the picnickers were dozens of tents and stalls offering something for everyone – whether they were looking for a pirate ship to play on; a relaxing massage in a shady spa tent; or advice on cycling or growing vegetables in a city garden.

Lillian, seven, said: "I went to a boxing class and I've been growing plants today. The pots have seeds inside that will grow into sunflowers. I'm going to show this one to my friends.”

“The kids love the pirate ship, and all the logs to play on”

The main stage was home to some fantastic Hackney talent, headlined by singer Rhian Cunningham, winner of this year's Discover Young Hackney talent contest. Other highlights included a Gahu Arts African drumming session and awards for children's sporting achievements.

On the Sports Field children had the chance to team up to compete in tournaments of tai chi, football, boxing and dance. And to cool off there were free swimming lessons at London Fields Lido.

Aspiring cooks with an eye on their health could head for the Kitchen Theatre. TV Chefs Andi Oliver of BBC2 show Dish it Up and Kerryann Dunlop – a graduate of Jamie Oliver's Fifteen programme – joined local chefs from the Hoxton Apprentice and Stoke Newington Farmers' Market, to cook up a feast from local produce.

NHS City and Hackney staff also offered visitors free health checks and advice on healthy living.

The Parks for Life programme is set to continue regularly in the borough's green spaces until September.

Arrest in connection with park shooting

A MAN has been arrested in connection with a shooting in London Fields, E8, on 22 May, as the Parks for Life event took place. Police arrested the 19-year-old on 26 May, as part of investigations into an incident that saw a 27-year-old bystander shot in the stomach as he enjoyed the sun in another area of the park. Shots were fired from outside London Fields and hit the victim.

Chief Superintendent Steve Bending, Hackney's Borough Commander, said: "It would appear that there was a disturbance between two groups of youths and then two shots were fired, resulting in an entirely innocent member of the public being shot." The victim was taken to an East London hospital, where he is now out of intensive care and believed to be making a good recovery.

The 19-year-old was released on bail to return in early June, pending further inquiries. Chief Superintendent Bending called the act 'callous, reckless and brazen' and appealed for witnesses to contact the investigation team via Crimestoppers. If anyone has any information about the incident, they are urged to call Crimestoppers on: 0800 555 111.

Behind the studio desk

George Alagiah at Hackney Central Library on 18 May, where he gave a talk to residents during Adult Learners' Week

By
Marcel Reinard

THERE'S a radiance that comes from George Alagiah, like a new jumper or a warm-hearted friend you could leave with your family while you make tea.

He effectively does the latter, minus the tea, every weekday night, entering the homes of millions as the anchor for the BBC's Six O'Clock News.

"I used to travel all over as a foreign correspondent, but bar elections or the odd earthquake, I don't get out that much these days," laughs the 54-year-old, who moved to Hackney in 1988.

Throughout the 1990s, he was the man who brought the news of international crises – famines, coups and natural disasters – to British living rooms.

"People ask how do you cope, and I always say it's like A&E on a Friday night. It's horrendous at times, but there's a black humour to the job, you remember the funny bits," he says.

This natural affability has acted as a cushion for some of his passionate ideals, shaped by his history as a Sri Lankan-born immigrant to Ghana, who came to England in the late 1960s.

In Hackney I think we are getting it about right

"Overnight I swapped Ghana with its chickens and rabbits – which appeared on our table at various times – for a boarding school in Portsmouth," he remembers.

He describes a defining moment in his life as an 11-year-old. Fellow schoolboys roared with laughter when one said the reason why his skin was darker than the others was because 'in bongo-bongo land they all run around with no clothes and they get brown all over'.

He admits: "George Alagiah laughed too, because he couldn't think of anything else to do. But inside I was burning, and I said to myself never again would I let my colour be the thing that defines me. It will have to be my prowess on the athletics track, or my hard work in the classroom."

George spent seven years in print journalism with South Magazine, before joining the BBC in 1989. He became a specialist on Africa and the developing world and interviewed prominent figures such as Nelson Mandela; Archbishop Desmond Tutu; Yasser Arafat; and President Robert Mugabe.

"Working for the BBC there is a high level of impartiality. But as someone who made the transition from poor world to rich world, I do understand injustice, and wanted to make a difference. That was the thing that got me into journalism," he says.

George can now often be found speaking on international economics outside his BBC day job, and has faced controversy for supporting Fairtrade and some of his views on multiculturalism.

In 2006, he wrote that he believed some areas in the UK had become similar to 'apartheid South Africa', with communities that were able to isolate themselves from the rest of society, because of a skewed interpretation of multiculturalism, which ironically was intended to prevent communities having the same experiences he did as a child.

"I think in some places it's created the opposite of what we set out to do. What I think has happened is that we've made difference – so people don't feel out of place – we've gone overboard so there's no incentive to participate," he said.

Adding: "But in Hackney

it's hard to believe that any of this is true and I think we are getting it about right."

Despite all his years of experience, George revealed problems can still occur in front of the camera. "My parents switched from Tamil to English when we reached Africa, but pronunciation was difficult and like Slovak people, Asian people can have difficulty with Vs and Ws.

"I had to be really careful during the US Primaries when I had to say 'Hilary had won the vote in West Virginia'. I'd take it very easy and say to myself 'Georgy Boy take one word at a time and we'll get through this'."

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I am moving house and need to dispose of some furniture that I no longer need. It seems such a shame to take it to the tip when it's actually in good condition. Is there anything else which can be done with it in the borough?

A: Instead of throwing unwanted furniture away you can do your bit and help those less fortunate.

The Council has joined up with community re-use project Homestore to collect unwanted furniture which is in good condition, free of charge.

This furniture is then made available to low-income households, giving people a chance to furnish their homes without getting into debt.

Only certain items are eligible for the scheme. For info call Homestore on: 020 8519 6264; visit:

Helpers dress up as mascots to get the anti-rubbish message across at the Capital Clean Up launch last month

A tidy campaign

By
Gabriel Harriss

OVER a thousand people visited the Capital Clean Up carnival last month helping to spruce up their local area while enjoying food, music and entertainment.

The launch event on 15 May in Graham Street Park, Islington, kicked off this year's Capital Clean Up campaign which sees hundreds of people taking part in over 200 events across London boroughs, including Hackney.

The Outward Group from Hackney, who work with vulnerable adults, helped remove rubbish from the Regent's Canal, which included five bikes, shopping trolleys, and a sunken boat.

Education service ecoACTIVE, based at Hothouse, E8, also held workshops on the day to teach children how to be more environmentally friendly.

A Hackney Capital Clean-up event is due to take place on 11 June. Residents are asked to meet outside McDonalds in the Narrow Way at 9.30am.

Schoolchildren will help out on the various stalls. They will also be walking around the Narrow Way, Mare Street and Graham

Road to pick up litter, and plant flowers in the green spaces around St John At Hackney church.

Supported by Keep Britain Tidy, London Councils, the Met Police, and businesses, the six week campaign is now in its fourth year.

Haven for fish in the River Lee

BRITISH Waterways is installing four fish refuges on the River Lee.

As part of a drive to improve water quality and wildlife habitats along the river ahead of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, it has teamed up with the Environment Agency to install 450 metres of reed-bed fringe across four areas.

The environmentally-friendly fish refuges will be near Island House at Three Mills, E3; Leabank Square, and Lee Conservancy Road, E9; and alongside the Anchor and Hope Pub, E5. Leabank Square residents and volunteers from Thames 21 joined British Waterways' ecologists on 19 May to make the wire reed-bed baskets, before the contractors install them along the line of the canal wall.

Leabank Square resident Nadira Abantu-Choudhury, said: "Over the last few years, we have been creating a wildlife-friendly garden up on our river bank and these reed beds will be the perfect compliment to all our sustainable gardening efforts.

"We will gladly welcome all future nest builders, croakers and swimmers looking for hideouts. Pond dipping in Leabank Square is about to get really exciting."

What to leave in ... and out

By Naomi Ocansey

HACKNEY now recycles more types of materials through the Council's Green Box service than most places in the country.

Collection teams make every effort to recycle everything that residents put out.

Over a dozen materials are accepted by the scheme, and the Council is working towards increasing the range of items collected even further. But there are still a number of materials that cannot currently be accepted.

These include nappies, wood, broken glass and plastic toys. Tied-up plastic bags are also not accepted unless it is clear that they contain recycling.

Any materials which can't be recycled through the service have to be left in the boxes as the crews have no way of disposing of them.

Residents are asked to put anything that's not taken away for recycling by the crews into their general waste bin.

Unfortunately this will include any rubbish that is thrown into the Green Boxes by thoughtless passers by.

Recycling recognition

THE Council's recycling team has been short listed for a prestigious award in the Local Authority Team of the Year category in the National Recycling Awards 2010.

It recognises the teams that have brought innovative, creative, and effective ideas to waste management. The short listing is an acknowledgement of Hackney's investment in recycling services over the past nine years, which has resulted in a nearly 27 per cent increase in the amount of household waste being recycled or composted. Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "This nomination is well deserved recognition for the team, and the investment Hackney is putting into improving services that continue to help make the borough cleaner and greener."

The awards are organised in conjunction with Materials Recycling Weekly magazine.

The winners will be announced at a ceremony in London on 15 July.

The Council's recycling team is behind events such as last month's Compost Awareness Week giveaway

Street trading (Fees for street markets and shop front trading including tables and chairs)

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT pursuant to section 32 of the London local authorities act 1990 (as amended), the council of the London Borough of Hackney proposes to vary the licence fees currently charged by it relating to street trading at markets and shop front trading including tables and chairs by introducing additional administrative fees.

Details of the proposed additional administrative fees are set out below:

Description	2010/11 Fees and Charges
Street Markets – Administration fees
Replacement of any lost/damaged PayPoint card	£20
Replacement of any lost/damaged Assistant ID card	£20
Replacement of any lost/damaged trader nameplate	£15
Shop Front Trading – Including tables and Chairs in the Street
Permanent Shop Front Trading - all commodities (up to a maximum of £3500 per year)	£0.70 per m ² per day
Temporary Shop Front Trading – all commodities (up to a maximum of £3500 per year)	£0.75 per m ² per day
Licence Application Fee	£15
Licence Renewal Fee	£15

The remainder of the existing fees currently charged by the Council relating to street trading shall remain unchanged.

Written representations regarding the above proposed fees may be made to the Parking and Markets Service, London Borough of Hackney, 2 Hillman Street London E8 1FB. All written representations must be received by Wednesday 7 July 2010.

The proposed additional administrative fees shall not become operative until all written representations received by the Council have been considered and a further notice published setting out the amount of the fees and the date on which the same are to be brought into effect.

Bricklaying student Brendan Kearney on his way to winning the regional competition

Building on success

By
Marcel Reinard

A HACKNEY Community College (HCC) student is hoping to cement his place in the Guild of Bricklayers' history books.

Brendan Kearney, 19, won the regional heat of the guild's national bricklaying competition, beating students from colleges across the capital, vying to represent London in the final.

During the contest, each student had to construct an exact replica of a technical drawing and their work was judged on accuracy and quality. Brendan won the junior category, and is off to the final in Liverpool on 30 June.

"I'm speechless," he said, adding: "It was a good moment for me winning this competition and I am well pleased with the result. I would like to thank all the bricklaying tutors for their help."

The heat took place at HCC's Falkirk Street campus and was judged by representatives from building industry firms Weinerberger and Tarmac.

Dennis Westwood, National Competition Secretary at the Guild of Bricklayers, said: "The aim of competitions like

"It was a good moment for me winning this competition and I am well pleased with the result"

this is to encourage future bricklayers to implement good practice and to produce high-quality work."

Learning from the masters

STUDENTS at an N16 school gained first-hand experience of working on a design project with a top firm of City architects.

As part of a Construction and Built Environment diploma course, pupils from Stoke Newington School and Sixth Form undertook an exercise to redesign a building used as a club for under-fives in Clissold Park. Students then took their brief to Swanke Hayden Connell (SHC), to find out how to produce design concepts and put them into a presentation.

SHC architect Patrick Spears told the group: "In an architect's office and in the real world, sometimes you have to stand up and say what you believe in."

Fahim Khan, 14, said: "It's made me feel like an adult coming in here and I enjoyed presenting."

The next stage of the initiative is for the students to refine their ideas and then produce a scale model of their building design. The project is run by Inspire!, the Education Business Partnership for Hackney.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Students find out more about the proposed field study centre

Urban education legacy

PROPOSALS to build an urban education centre in the Olympic Park have been announced.

It would provide students with the chance to gain hands-on experience in areas including urban design and managing the environment over the next 25 years.

The Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC) and the Field Studies Council (FSC) last month signed a pledge to explore the possibility of establishing the centre after the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Existing FSC centres offer outdoor classrooms, libraries with environmental publications, and computers for the analysis and presentation of data.

The FSC will now develop plans, including funding options for a residential centre in the Park which could accommodate up to 150 beds.

Tim Burt, Field Studies Council chairman, said: "This project will have a very long life. No such residential education centre with a strong urban and sustainable living focus exists in London, or anywhere in the world."

Margaret Ford, OPLC Chairman, added: "Education is a key part of our vision to secure a sustainable legacy, and this is an exciting opportunity to explore options for London's first residential centre specialising in the built environment."

Teaching Awards finalist

A TEACHING assistant from a Homerton school has been nominated as a finalist at this year's Teaching Awards.

Sarah Mansfield from Berger Primary School, E9, is one of the candidates in line to win the TDA award for Teaching Assistant of the Year at the annual ceremony.

Now in its 12th year, the awards celebrate achievements by headteachers, teachers, teaching assistants, governors, school teams and sustainable schools from across London and the South East of England.

Each of the winners across 11 categories will receive a Plato, the Teaching Awards symbol of excellence in education. Distinctions and commendations will also be presented.

Winners will be announced at a ceremony presented by BBC news presenter Riz Lateef at the British Museum on 22 June. Other VIP guest speakers are set to include actress Emma Thompson and author and broadcaster Melvin Bragg.

PREVIEW

Blaze 2010

Various Hackney venues & the Barbican, 19 June-31 July

ONE of the jazz world's most recognisable artists is to start a summer of music in one of London's most iconic venues.

Hackney Empire bounces back with a roster full of contemporary music acts from around the world as part of Blaze 2010. The music programme from the Barbican will ring in a new chapter for the theatre.

Blaze begins in Hackney when The Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra with Wynton Marsalis (above) brings one of New York's biggest bands to the big stage on Mare Street (20 June): first with a family programme featuring new arrangements of children's songs; and later with compositions from Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter and other jazz stars from the 1960s to the present day.

Latin America makes an appearance courtesy of a joint show between Céu and Bomba Estéreo purveying samba-funk and Colombian dance folk respectively (15 July).

Another highlight at the Empire includes the stars of a hit documentary at the Cannes Film Festival, Staff Benda Bilili (20 July); and elsewhere in the borough watch out for the Roots of Reggae show at Shoreditch Festival (18 July).

REVIEW

Pandora offers a new slant on an ancient story

Out of the box

By Kate Gibney

Pandora, Arcola Theatre, Arcola Street, E8, until 12 June.

MAKING full use of the Arcola's rambling main performance space, Pandora has been described in the national press as 'diversity in the theatre at its best – reaching out across age, race, gender and class'.

Written by Hackney resident Jennie Buckman, the two-hour show is a series of five interlinked plays with Hackney at their heart. The curious, captivating vignettes are interspersed with video screen comments from older women about the ancient tale of Pandora, who opens a box of terrible things with hope at the bottom. They consider her – as does the whole performance – as a real, emotional woman, with a profound sense of responsibility, as well as a strong resentment at her perceived misrepresentation.

The play grew out of workshops with women from Haringey University of the Third Age and Year Nine students at Gladesmore Community School, N15.

Hackney Community College's advanced performing arts students then worked with the actors, inputting into rehearsals, and even changing the play where they felt they had the life experience, telling the actors 'how it really is'. Buckman said: "They are an absolutely fantastic group, and ask the most brilliant and probing questions."

This is very much a show with a local focus.

Although not polished, it is populated by endearing, moving, and at times comedic characters, who give it a certain shine.

WIN!!
A Tiesto treat

FRESH from the tour of his new album, Tiësto has announced the return of his Victoria Park show.

In 2009, around 25,000 revellers came to see the Dutch DJ in the park and this year, with sound and visuals that accompanied his 'Kaleidoscope' tour, the show is set to be even bigger. Electro rockers Pendulum will be in support performing material from their album in what some expect to be one of the most exciting live shows this summer. There will also be a host of arenas including a Mixmag stage with Eddie Halliwell, and one from new-disco producers Future Disco. Tiësto in the Park takes place at Victoria Park, E3, on 30 July, 2-10.45pm. For info, visit: www.tiesto.com

Anyone for Jazzball?

A world of difference

By Emma Britton

Alternative World Cup Celebration, 12 June, Gillett Square, N16, from 1pm

AN afternoon of free play events for families will be followed by an exclusive preview of costumes from participants in this year's eagerly awaited Hackney One Carnival.

The day kicks off with the second of four Total Play Days, running from 1-4pm every Saturday in June. Visitors to Gillett Square can play chess on a giant board, enjoy ping-pong, and try new and traditional games from Oware, the national game of Ghana, to magnetic football.

Children will also be able to get creative with 'snug' play equipment that they can move around and join together to create their own exciting play areas.

A colourful carnival extravaganza will follow from 5-7pm, showcasing dance performances, steel band music and a workshop from groups taking part in this year's Hackney One Carnival.

To round things off, the first England World Cup match, against the USA, will be shown on a giant outdoor screen, accompanied by live improvised jazz.

JazzBall, run by the Vortex Jazz club, was conducted four years ago to great critical acclaim and, in partnership with Hackney Council, will go bigger and better this time round. Billy Jenkins, who came up with the concept, said: "Jazz is just like football. It's the most kinetic and spontaneous art form we have. Both of them are about organising joy from chaos. It's like the musicians will play to a giant musical score by following the bouncing ball on the screen."

Get set for summer

Hackney's weightlifting and girls' basketball teams are among those in with a chance of a medal in the London Youth Games final events next month.

By
Marcel Reinard

A HACKNEY youth weightlifting team has powered its way into medal contention at this year's Balfour Beatty London Youth Games.

After a difficult 2008 competition that saw Hackney finish close to bottom, the team surged to second place last year, and organisers believe further success could be on the cards in next month's 2010 final.

Hackney's current team all attend Cardinal Pole Catholic School. Kim Pham and Omarie Mearns, both 16, won gold at the British School Championships earlier this year, with Kim named newcomer of the year. Rita Ntembo, Delyce Joseph-Albert and Soji Akinawo form the rest of the squad, making it 'one of the strongest in London weightlifting', according to the London Youth Games organisers.

Kim (below, far right) said: "Competing against everyone from all the other boroughs is quite intense. You just want to fight, get the

The new Well Street surgery aims to 'combine environmental awareness with functionality and improved patient experience'

By
Marcel Reinard

WELL Street Surgery is now open again following a £2million relocation.

The new four-storey building on the site of a Victorian textile factory in Shore Road, E9, close to the surgery's former location, is one of the largest medical practices in the borough.

It boasts facilities for up to 15 GPs; three waiting areas; a minor surgery clinic with two operating rooms and a dedicated reception; community kitchen; staff room with sun terrace; plus seminar rooms and a library resource room.

The design involved extensive consultation with staff and patients.

The development also includes sustainable features: solar panels to minimise energy use, rainwater harvesting, windows to maximise natural light and ventilation to prevent the use of high-energy air conditioning.

Julian Stock, partner at architects Stock

Woolstencroft, said: "We have aimed to provide a calm and welcoming building combining environmental awareness, functionality and an improved patient experience."

"The building will make a major contribution to the local community it serves."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Streetwalk

A HOMELESSNESS charity is asking residents to hit the streets for a good cause.

St Mungo's annual Action Week, which runs from 20 to 27 June, focuses on supporting homeless people back into work. As part of the fund-raising activities, a sponsored walk is set for 20 June, starting and finishing at St John's Church in Waterloo where homeless volunteers from St Mungo's help tend the gardens.

Last year, the Council worked with St Mungo's to refurbish its Mare Street hostel, which now provides en-suite rooms and self-contained flats for 60 residents, activities, courses and training to help people into work.

St Mungo's is open seven days a week and each night houses over 1,500 homeless men and women. The charity runs emergency services, supports homeless people in their recovery, and works to prevent homelessness.

Service moves delayed

A HEALTH service earmarked for relocation ahead of the construction of a new health centre has been delayed.

Staff at St Leonard's Hospital in Hoxton, NHS City and Hackney's headquarters, began moving to new sites last month so work could begin on the South West Hackney Primary Care Resource Centre.

Community sexual health service The Ivy Centre was set to move to 100 Shepherdess Walk, N1, in late May, but due to delays in building works the date has been pushed back to the summer.

The physiotherapy department successfully relocated last month to 52B Well Street, E9. Both services are due to move back to the new health hub when it opens in 2012.

The Foot Health Department and Community Dentistry will stay at St Leonard's Hospital for the remainder of 2010, before moving to the new South East Hackney Primary Care Resource Centre on Kenworthy Road, E9, in spring 2011.

Give blood

RESIDENTS can give blood at a donor day in Stoke Newington this month.

Hospitals in London and the South East need around 5,500 units of blood every week to help patients who may have been in an accident, undergone surgery, or have a serious blood disease.

NHS Blood and Transplant, the authority responsible for raising the quality of blood and transplant services, said the process usually takes around an hour, starting with a health questionnaire. Donating takes up to 15 minutes, followed by the legendary tea and biscuits. In most cases, anyone aged between 17 and 65, weighing more than 7st 12lbs (50kg), and in general good health can give blood.

Sessions take place at St Paul's Church Hall, Evering Road, N16, on 11 June, from 12.45-3.30pm and 5-7.30pm. For info, call:

A decade of happy memories

CHIEF nurse Pauline Brown has left Homerton hospital following 10 years of dedicated service.

A party of family, friends and colleagues gathered to acknowledge her hard work and present Pauline with a leaving gift: a traditional nurse's cape worn by staff at the old Hackney Hospital.

She said: "I have thoroughly enjoyed my time at Homerton – it's a great place to work with committed governors, members and staff.

"We have seen lots of new developments – such as the refurbishment of Lamb Ward – which have been driven by the nurses, something I am very proud of. I wish everybody at the hospital every success."

Pauline plans to take a year off before moving to Oxfordshire.

The beautiful game

By Siân Mogridge,
Archivist

IN the run-up to the World Cup, you might sometimes be forgiven for thinking that football is the only sport that exists in Britain.

True, we get excited by the Ashes, Wimbledon and the Rugby World Cup, but they don't create quite the same amount of national enthusiasm as major football competitions. But it hasn't always been that way.

Football, in its current form, is a relatively young sport. The game has existed for centuries, but for much of that time, it didn't have many fixed rules. Some games could involve up to a thousand players and several miles of countryside, with kicking, biting and handling the ball all allowed.

In the 19th century things started to change. This was partly due to the coming of the railways, which made it a lot easier for teams from different parts of the country to compete against each other. This in turn made it essential that one standard set of rules existed, rather than the local versions that had been used before. As a result, the Football Association was founded in 1863.

From the 1860s onwards, local football teams became a lot more common, and Hackney residents were not slow to get involved in the new version of the game. Football was played at Hackney Downs, Victoria Park, Millfields and, of course, on Hackney Marshes.

Clubs existing in the 1870s included the Sky Rockets, the Ramblers, Oakfield, Gresham, the Pilgrims and Clapton, which was to become a leading amateur club, but moved to West Ham in 1888.

Some of the teams formed in Hackney in the late 19th century are still around today. One was founded in the 1880s, by members of the Eagles Cricket Club to give them something to do during the winter. They named their new amateur club 'Orient', which was changed to 'Clapton Orient' in 1898.

Orient played for several years at a field off Glyn Road, E5, and then at Whittles Athletic Ground, but in 1900 they moved to Millfields Road, E5, where they stayed for the next 30 years. They became a professional club in 1903, and in 1921 received a visit from the Prince of Wales, who watched the team win three-nil in a home match against Notts County.

But despite our present-day mania for the beautiful game, for many years it was far from being Britain's national pastime. Football was certainly played in Victoria Park in the 1870s, but maps of that period only identify the cricket ground.

Some 50 years later in 1930, Clapton Orient was forced to move from Millfields Road because the stadium's owners were more interested in promoting greyhound racing than football. They eventually found a home at Brisbane Road, E10, and in 1946 renamed themselves 'Leyton Orient' to fit in with their new location – where they remain to this day.

Hackney Council is committed to improving services, increasing opportunities for all, and making a safer, cleaner, greener borough. Here we focus on a service that helps to make this possible:

GETTING A FOOT ON THE LADDER

Consultant Social Worker Karen Gaughan

KAREN has worked in the Council's Leaving Care Service for nearly two years, having qualified as a social worker more than 10 years ago. She leads one of four units that support young people to leave the care system and help them become healthy, happy and independent young adults. She applied for the role because it struck her as an effective, challenging way of working with young people, while having enough autonomy to ensure decision-making is relatively quick and easy.

She said: "Coming to Hackney has reignited my passion for social work. I am now able to share cases with other professionals, while learning new skills to effect change in the lives of the disadvantaged young people that we work with." She added: "Every day is very different and can be both positive and a challenge. "But working in the way that we do, and with partners that we rely on, we are able to provide a more consistent service for the young people, who are vibrant, resilient and creative."

By
Gracia Douglas

THE Leaving Care Service helps young people make the transition from growing up in care, to living as independent adults.

The Hackney Central-based service has been structured in line with the Council's widely-praised Reclaiming Social Work model of practice.

KEY FACT

The service aims to enhance young people's skills and resilience

There are four units, each dedicated to supporting a number of young people aged 18 to 21 – or up to 24 if they are in higher education. Teams are led by a consultant social worker and comprise of a family therapist, social worker, practitioner and unit co-ordinator.

Many of the issues these young people struggle with are the same as anyone their age, but with the added difficulties of managing without supportive parents or family networks.

They often need help to learn to navigate issues around housing, jobs, benefits, bills, neighbours,

Some young people leaving care often need help because they have less support from parents or relatives family, sex and relationships. The service aims to enhance young people's skills and resilience and to ensure they are equipped to face the challenges of adulthood with, as one young person described it, someone to 'watch my back'.

Young People are also supported by the Virtual School based at Stoke Newington Town Hall. It provides specialist education, training and employment support, and monitors young people's progress in partnership with the social work units.

THE North London line has reopened following three months of works to renew the track, upgrade signalling and lengthen platforms at some stations.

When complete by spring 2011, the upgrade will provide more frequent, longer trains, less over-crowding and a more reliable service.

The work included renewing six kilometres of track; installing 17,000 metres of overhead line; building 583 metres of station platform between Gospel Oak and Stratford; and the installing 23km of signalling cable.

This follows the opening of the extended East London line on 23 May,

A total of £326m is being invested upgrading the London Overground network with four new stations in the borough at Shoreditch High Street, Hoxton, Haggerston and Dalston Junction. It will be further extended to Highbury and Islington by spring 2011.

Ian Brown, Managing Director of Transport for London's London Rail, said: "I would like to welcome passengers back to the line and thank them for their patience with our very necessary upgrade programme. A total of £326million is being invested in upgrading the London Overground network and when complete it will deliver longer trains and more frequent services.

"It's the first time there has been any significant improvement work done to the line since it was built in 1869 and it desperately needed it."

Works will continue on the North London line at weekends and there will be further closures this winter to commission the new signalling.

The new London Overground station at Haggerston – one of four in the borough

Uncovering rail history

AN exhibition celebrating the new London Overground line – which includes Hackney's four new stations – is now on show at the London Transport Museum.

'Overground Uncovered' is presented in three themed galleries, Connecting Communities, The Thames Tunnel and A New Train Set For London.

Connecting Communities focuses on the stations between Dalston Junction and West Croydon. It uses photographs, posters and objects from the museum's collection to highlight local curiosities and offer a lively introduction to the area along the line. It includes drawings by artist Alexandra Blum that document the changing shape of Hackney.

The exhibition is on show at the Covent Garden museum until March 2011.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Two-wheeled challenge

THERE'S still time to sign up for the London Cycling Challenge this month.

Organised by Transport for London (TfL), the challenge is open to everyone who lives, works or studies in London and is a fun way for riders to get started, or to start cycling more often.

Groups of friends, families or work colleagues can get together to create a team during June and challenge each other – and other teams – to see who can cycle the most miles.

Cyclists will be awarded points for the miles they cover, with extra points for clocking up those first few miles.

There are great prizes for the winning teams, including leisure vouchers that can be used at restaurants, health and leisure venues or other attractions. Prizes will also be given out on every day of the challenge.

To take part, join or create a team on the London Cycle Challenge website and log all the journeys you cycle during June. Visit: www.tfl.gov.uk/cyclechallenge

Scooting safely

NEARLY 40 people expressed an interest in training over the two-day launch of Hackney's road safety programme for new motorcyclists.

The Council's road safety team – along with Met Police, police initiative BikeSafe, and East London Advanced Motorcyclists – were at Shoreditch Fire Station and Scooterden in Kingsland Road on 2 and 3 June, handing out information about the free theory course and discounted on-road training programme available to people who want to learn to ride a scooter or moped in Hackney.

Courses consist of two theory sessions that include tips on road safety and practical advice for new learners.

Anyone who completes a course will also receive 50 per cent off their Compulsory Basic Training (CBT) test. Participants do not have to own a vehicle, but must have a provisional motorcycle licence or full motor car licence with provisional moped/scooter entitlement.

If you live, work or attend further education in the borough, and want to book a place on the next course starting in July, call: 020 8356 8364; e-mail:

Job vacancies

Community Services

Complaints & Enquiries Assistant

£30,345-£31,935

Fixed-term until March 2011

Apply by: 10 June

This is your chance to provide full support to the Complaints and Enquiries Manager, including deputising in their absence, taking charge of all systems and information relating to complaints, and ensuring that all complaints are handled in an effective and efficient manner.

You'll have experience of using ICT to manage information; an understanding of effective complaints handling; a confident telephone manner; and the ability to produce high quality correspondence. Committed to maintaining confidentiality and equal opportunities, you will use our complaints management software to record and monitor the progress of complaints; liaise with individual staff and heads of service to resolve complaints; and deal with correspondence and telephone calls.

We're looking for someone who has the ability to work in an organised and systematic way while under pressure, with an understanding of the services that are provided by the Council.

You will have experience of advising managers on systems and procedures, and a flair for organising your workload. Understanding of adult social care services and experience of using complaints management systems (e.g. Respond) is desirable.

Job Profile

Kofi, Daisy, Derrie & Antonn

Current apprentices, talk to Hackney Today about how the Hackney Homes Apprenticeship Scheme has benefited them

Kofi Opoku, multi-skilled tradesman

Kofi, 20, is currently a multi-skilled apprentice in his third year. He said: "I wanted a positive career and I always wanted to do this. Some of the highlights are working with professionals and every day is different with different obstacles to climb. The scheme gives you a positive outlook on your future."

Daisy Clarke, plumber

Daisy, 19, is learning to be a plumber and is in her third year. She said: "It's something different for a woman to do and it's good to prove that we can do it. I love the hands-on work. Every day is different and no two jobs are the same."

Apprentices (L-R) Anton, Derrie, Kofi and Daisy

It's not boring and we always have help when we need it."

Derrie O'Halloran, carpenter

Derrie, 19, is a first year carpentry apprentice. She said: "It has given me an opportunity to learn a new trade and use my skills. I am gaining confidence by being able to do tasks myself once I've learnt how to do it. It is challenging and a great learning experience."

Anton Christophe, electrician

Anton, 19, is in his first year as an electrical apprentice. He said: "I wanted to better myself and work with Hackney Homes to make a difference to Hackney. I've lived in the borough all my life and I wanted to make it better. I would definitely recommend it – a chance to work, learn a trade and find out how working life is."

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice
www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Sean Levy, 30, came to Training for Life in February after being unemployed for over a year. He is currently three months in to his role as apprentice chef and is enjoying gaining new knowledge of the food industry. Sean applied for the position after meeting head chef Leon Seraphin, who also started out as an apprentice chef here at the Hoxton Apprentice two years ago. Of his apprenticeship Sean said: "The best thing about being at the Hoxton Apprentice is learning new skills and different styles of cooking. You also meet people who are willing to help and support you, and you earn a real wage." Sean believes his strengths are his communication skills, and sharing his food knowledge with those he works with. Sean's inspiration is head chef Leon who has been training him since he started his apprenticeship. In three year's time, Sean hopes to own a café serving a mixture of English and Caribbean food, while still expanding his cooking skills.

Poached haddock with new potatoes
Serves 2

Ingredients

- For the fish:
- 2 medium or 1 large fillet of haddock
 - ½ pint milk (enough to cover fish)
 - Large knob of butter
 - Chopped fresh parsley and chives

On the Side:

- 8-12 new potatoes
- ½ sliced savoy cabbage

Method

- Preheat the oven to 200°C
- Remove any pin bones from the fish with tweezers. Season with pepper

Preparation time
Under 30 mins
Cooking time
10-30 mins

- Place haddock skin down in a ceramic dish. Add milk until it just covers the fish. Spread small knobs of butter along the fish and place in the oven for 15-20 minutes
- Depending on the size and variety of the new potatoes, either halve or boil whole, in lightly salted water
- Add the savoy cabbage to lightly season the boiling water for 2-4mins
- To serve, place haddock on top of a bed of savoy cabbage, with new potatoes on the side. Drizzle with the sauce reduction.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house. Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people.

Equality strategies

THE public's views are being sought on draft gender and race equality schemes published by the Greater London Authority (GLA). The two schemes set out what the GLA has done, and plans to do, in relation to gender and race equality. The GLA is interested in finding out whether the themes that have been identified are the right ones; if the evidence gathered in the whole scheme is complete; and what people's views are on future plans. Both consultations run until 11 August and the results will be published in the autumn. Consultation workshops will be held at City Hall to give Londoners a chance to have their say on the plans. Race equality scheme workshops take place on 10 June, at 2pm; and 22 July, at 10am. Gender equality scheme workshops take place on 8 July, at 2pm; and 13 July, at 10am. Events are free with pre-requested tickets allocated on a first come, first served basis. To register an interest in the workshops and have your say by completing an online survey, visit: www.london.gov.uk

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The Speaker is Cllr Sally Mulready.

LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY THE HACKNEY (PARKING PLACES) (LONDON CYCLE HIRE SCHEME) (NO. 1) ORDER 2010 THE HACKNEY (PARKING PLACES) (A ZONE) (AMENDMENT NO. 4) ORDER 2010 THE HACKNEY (PARKING PLACES) (B ZONE) (AMENDMENT NO. 2) ORDER 2010 THE HACKNEY (FOOTWAY PARKING PLACES) (NO. 1) ORDER 2010 TRO 542

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on 4th June 2010 the Council of the London Borough of Hackney made the above-mentioned Orders under sections 6, 45, 46, 49 and 124 of and Part IV of Schedule 9 to the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 as amended by the Local Government Act 1985 and the Traffic Management Act 2004, and the Greater London Councils (General Powers) Act 1974 and Section 19 of the Road Traffic Act 1988.

2. The general effect of the Orders will be to:-
(a) introduce “cycle hire” parking places operating “at any time” into certain sections of Bridport Place, Christopher Street, East Road, Falkirk Street, Leonard Street, Murray Grove, New Inn Yard, New North Road, Pitfield Street, Sun Street, Wenlock Road and Windsor Terrace. The parking places would be for the purpose of accommodating the provision of hire cycles and their docking stations and would be for general public use as part of the London wide cycle hire scheme;

(b) reduce the lengths of certain existing parking places in Leonard Street, Sun Street and Windsor Terrace and remove an existing parking place in New Inn Yard in order to accommodate the provision of the “cycle hire” parking places.

3. Copies of the Orders, which will come into force on 9th June 2010, other relevant Orders, and other documents giving more detailed particulars of any of the Orders, can be inspected during normal office hours on Mondays to Fridays inclusive, until the expiration of a period of six weeks from the date on which the Orders are made, in the reception area, London Borough of Hackney, 1 Hillman Street London, E8 1DY. Further information may be obtained by contacting Helpdesk on 020 8356 2897.

4. If any person wishes to question the validity of any of the Orders, or of any provision contained therein on the grounds that it not within the powers conferred by the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 or that any requirement of the Act or of any instrument under the Act has not been complied with, that person may, within six weeks of the date on which the Orders are made, apply for the purpose to the High Court.
